

This puzzle is the following poem. It was originally part of a larger puzzle hunt (i.e. a chain of puzzles) that I put together in 2017, but it still can stand as its own work.

Sóh₂wl̩ h₂elb^hóm mont̩ h₂enti kleyti.
Srowmos g^helh₃os móri h₃b^hi plewti.
TuHsontmos méhtmos wéyden welh₁esi,
_____.

There are two important points to know before attempting to solve this puzzle:

- The answer to the previous puzzle in the hunt (which was the password to open this puzzle) was the 63rd story prime.
- The original hunt was solved by crowdsource. I knew when making the puzzle that among the solvers would be someone familiar with historical linguistics and someone familiar with basic Chinese poetry.

The answer is inside this box in white text, which you can highlight to reveal. If you are using a screen reader, know that only spoilers follow.

```

#
#####
```